

Documentalist

In this position, you are the hub of a project concerning the documentation part. You know how to provide our customers with the right information on all aspects of our machines, using illustrations and written text in the machine manual. You are responsible for the delivery of the technical manuals. No machine is the same, and therefore neither is the manual. This makes your work versatile and challenging, as you work closely with virtually all disciplines within the project to gather the necessary information.

Your responsibilities include:

- Creating the overall description of the machine;
- Extracting the required information within the organisation and our foreign branches;
- Preparing maintenance instructions;
- Preparing instructions for operating the machine;
- Preparing instructions for machine safety.
